ARTIST BIOGRAPHY

Betsy Frost grew up in North Bennington, Vermont, the eldest daughter of 10 children. She always thought she would be a doctor, as her father had been taking her along on his surgical rounds from the time she was six. But after a discouraging glimpse of the pre-med rigors at Williams College, Betsy majored in psychology instead.

After graduation from Williams in 1987, Betsy pursued a variety of interests. She waited tables in St. Thomas, danced her way around the world with "Up With People," and studied silversmithing in Sweden, and at Skidmore College in Saratoga Springs, NY. She later moved to Boston to be trained for a "real job" enrolling in a master's program in counseling psychology. While in graduate school, Betsy did marketing and sales for a computer company and continued taking classes in silversmithing. It didn't take her too long to discover that she really wanted to design jewelry, so she quit the master's program and began studying at the Massachusetts College of Art.

Betsy graduated with a BA in Metals from the Massachusetts College of Art in 1996 and moved into a studio in an old mill building in the Jamaica Plain section of Boston. Using the tools she inherited from the late Joan Grant, a silversmith and former riding friend, Betsy crafted her first collection. She was quickly accepted into juried wholesale and retail shows. Business has been booming ever since.

Betsy's designs are fluid—reflecting her early training in dance and gymnastics, and sensual—hinting at the female form. One could say her designs have an almost Scandinavian feel. Betsy prizes shape and movement over surface texture and color. She brings her jewelry alive with links and hinges in a way that is comfortable to wear, fun and aesthetically pleasing. She works primarily in sterling silver, and her pieces are either fabricated from sheet into hollow forms, or cast through the lost-wax casting process.

Betsy is inspired by such artists as Matisse & Degas, but also gets many of her ideas from her immediate surroundings—the shape of a flower or the "line" of a piece of furniture. She is mesmerized by patterns in tapestry, wallpaper and carpet and confesses that when she is talking to someone, she is usually studying the wallpaper or designs in the carpet, trying to envision the shapes as beautiful pieces of jewelry.

Betsy currently resides in Ipswich, Massachusetts with her husband Jeff, sons Connor and Rowan, and dogs Jack, Scarlot & Mischa.
